ABSTRACT

This publication lists area programs of study in international education at United States colleges and universities. Inclusiveness over selectivity has been favored; simple faculty review committees are included, as well as full area studies programs offering graduate and undergraduate programs. Part I of the directory is a listing by state, giving area program or center's name, institution address, and director. In Part II the programs are indexed by the following geographical regions: 1) Sub-Saharan African Studies; 2) General Asian Studies, including Oceanic Studies; 3) Canadian and North American Studies; 4) East Asian Studies; 5) East European and Russian Studies; 6) Latin American Studies, including Caribbean Studies; 7) Middle Eastern and North African Studies; 8) Multi-Area and Rotating Area Studies; 9) South Asian Studies; 10) Southeast Asian Studies; and, 11) West European Studies. Annual revisions of the directory are intended and the next issue will also include area studies programs and centers in other countries. (Author/JSB)

INTRODUCTION

Two years ago the International Council for Educational Development, then Education and World Affairs, began an information retrieval system to collect and maintain information on international programs at U.S. colleges and universities. Much of the information collected in the first survey was used in the preparation of the report of the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education, BRIDGES TO UNDERSTANDING: INTERNATIONAL PROGRAMS OF AMERICAN COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES (McGraw-Hill, December 1970). One interesting phenomenon made clear during this collection process was the rapid proliferation of area studies programs. In the last half of the sixties, an average of more than thirty new programs were started each year. We have also been impressed by the number of requests ICED receives for information on the location of area programs. These factors argued strongly for a directory of area programs which would be available to those interested in international education.

The publication of such a directory of area programs parallels the existing ICED Directory of INTERNATIONAL OFFICES ON U.S. AND CANADIAN CAMPUSES, which lists the office on each campus which coordinates international activities at that institution. As with that directory, we recognize that the area studies field is a rapidly changing one and information fragmentary. We are aware that we will have overlooked some programs, and probably have included some information which is no longer accurate. We will be most grateful for additions or corrections to this directory, which hopefully will be reissued each year. We have favored inclusiveness over selectivity in this directory, and we have not attempted to define area programs tightly, but include everything from simple faculty review committees to full-blown area studies programs offering graduate and undergraduate programs.

This directory is limited to area programs at U.S. institutions. The International Council for Educational Development is an international, rather than national organization; thus, the next directory will also include area studies programs in other countries.

ICED would like to express its appreciation for the support it receives for the Data Bank from The Institute of International Studies of the Office of Education, the Agency for International Development, and the Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs of the State Department. Although their funds were not used in publishing this directory, without their help the information would not have been available from the Data Bank.
